5 Americans Are Freed by Reds in Laos

All But One Yankee Appear Healthy after Year of Captivity

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Five Americans and a Filipino held captive for more than a year by pro-Communist forces were released today.

The men, who had all grown beards during their captivity, were cheered by a crowd of several hundred as they emerged from the twin-engine Soviet plane that brought them to Vientiane from Pathet Lao headquarters in the Plaine des Jarres.

Those released were Maj. Lawrence Bailey, Laurel, Md., assistant military attache at the U.S. Embassy in Vientiane; John McMorrow, Brooklyn, N.Y.; John Shore Jr., Galloway, Tenn.; Sgt. Orville Ballenger, Columbus, Ohio; NBC cameraman Grant Wolfkill of Shelton, Wash., and Lorenzo Frigiliana of the Philippines.

All six appeared to have lost considerable weight.

In Columbus, Ohio, Mrs. Lena Matthews, mother of Sgt. Ballenger, cried "that's wonderful news" when newsmen told her that her son had been released. She said she had received but one brief letter from him since his captivity, forwarded through Army and State Department officials.

Sgt. Ballenger is a 10-year Army veteran. He is married to a Japanese girl, Miyoko, whom he met while serving in Japan. She is now living near Fort Bragg, N.C.

Wolfkill left soon after Bangkok en route to the United States. NBC correspondent Jim Robinson, who accompanied him, said Wolfkill would leave Bangkok for New York as soon as possible.

The other Americans and Frigiliana were flown to the U.S. Air Force Clark base north of Manila for a medical checkup and interrogation.

Wolfkill, Shore, McMorrow and Frigiliana looked healthy and in good spirits, but Ballenger was haggard and looked tired.

Bailey had to be helped from the plane to the airport terminal. An Army doctor, Maj. Estes Cohen, who made a superficial check of the men aboard the plane, said, "They are all okay except Bailey who is pretty weak."

Shore and McMorrow were civilian employees of the charter (Continued on Page 12)

State Orders $1 Hour Pay In Laundries

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A state order today established a $1 hourly minimum wage for the laundry industry, effective Oct. 1, with periodic increases to $1.25 an hour on Jan. 1, 1965.

Miss Margaret A. Mahoney, industrial relations director, announced the order following Aug. 8 recommendations of the minimum wage board.

The order provides for increases to $1.10 hourly minimum Oct. 1, 1963, and $1.20 July 1, 1964.

The order applies to an estimated 19,960 laundry workers in Ohio.

Ohio already has a 90-cent hourly minimum, set in 1958 for the dry cleaning industry.

Miss Mahoney made it clear that her new order did not provide for time and one-half over 40 hours a week, although it had been advocated.

"There have been strenuous objections to even the recommended wage of $1 per hour from part of the laundry industry and to the escalator clause raising the wage to $1.25 in a 27-month period from other segments of the industry, which originally opposed but have now become reconciled to the $1 rate," Miss Mahoney said.

In Honor of A. W. Marion

Park Dedication Scheduled Sept. 9

Marion State Park will become the official name of the Hargus Creek Lake Site on Sept. 9.

Dedication ceremonies will get under way at 3 p. m., according to V. W. Flickinger, chief of the Division of Parks, who notified Rep. Ed Wallace this week of the coming event.

The dedication originally had been scheduled for Aug. 26.

The area, formerly known as Hargus Creek State Park, is being renamed in honor of the late A. W. Marion, Pickaway County native and first director of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources.

THE prominent local native died several months ago. The park area is within a short distance of his boyhood home.

Renaming of the area was approved by the Natural Resources Commission earlier this year. Employees of the department contributed to the cost of a bronze plaque and development of the park area where it will be located.

The plaque will be at a setting situated on a knoll overlooking the dam which created the lake.

New First Graders Required To Have Physical Examinations

Physical examinations as well as complete immunizations for polio, diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough will be required for all new first graders entering Circleville Schools on Sept. 4.

The announcement was made today by the Circleville Board of Health. A similar program was conducted here last year.

Children who are repeating the first grade and attended Circleville schools last year already have a permanent school health record on file and are not required to repeat the examinations.

All local doctors have been supplied with the health record forms needed for each child entering school.

HEALTH board officials request parents of first graders who have not taken care of this matter to do so immediately.

Parents unable to comply with these regulations are requested to contact the school health nurse at the Circleville Health Department in the Municipal Building, or call GR 4-4801 and arrange for an appointment for a special pre-school clinic scheduled Aug. 29.

Bus Collision Kills Woman

RAVENNA, Ohio (AP)—A Greyhound bus slammed into the rear of a steel-laden truck on the Ohio Turnpike today, killing one woman and injuring at least 23 persons, four seriously.

The turnpike patrol said the bus, on its way from Pittsburgh to Cleveland, had passed a car and was pulling back into the outside lane when it collided with the semi tractor-trailer. There were 27 aboard the bus.

The vehicles remained upright, but both westbound lanes of the toll road were strewn with wreckage from steel bars from the truck. Westbound traffic was at a standstill for almost two hours until work crews cleared the roadway.

The dead woman was identified as Miss Yukiko Maurakami, 25, of Tokyo, Japan. Seriously injured was Miss Seiko Kaneko, 22, also of Tokyo, reportedly a daughter of a member of the Japanese parliament.

Steve Amicarelli, 42, of Youngstown, the bus driver, received minor injuries. Calvin Lester, 33, of Pittsburgh, the truck driver, was not hurt. He was hauling a load of steel from Pittsburgh to Michigan.

Unspent Mental Funds Released by Board

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Transfer of about $1.5 million of the estimated $4.5 million in unspent mental hygiene and corrections funds has been approved by the State Controlling Board. Much of the allocation will be transferred from personal services to maintenance and building rehabilitation.

Kennedy Says Nation Enters Crisis Decade

Inefficiency, Waste, Endless Debate, Delay Labeled Liabilities

PIERRE, S.D. (AP)—President Kennedy declared today the nation is entering a decade of crisis and "we cannot afford inefficiency and waste. We cannot afford endless debate and delay."

Standing beside South Dakota's vast Oahe Dam—the first stop in a weekend swing through the West—Kennedy pictured the country as in a race with a challenge.

And he urged in his prepared address that all parts of the economy pull together or else "the American people will be the losers."

Said Kennedy: "If the railroads prevent coal slurry pipelines from conveying the resources of our mines—if the mining interests prevent the use of nuclear energy for public and private transmission—if public and private power interests veto each other's progress, or if one region refuses to permit another to share in its abundance—then we shall be entering a decade of challenge and crisis with an inexorable, vulnerable attitude of waste."

Kennedy noted that the Oahe Dam was the fifth of six great dams to control the mainstream of the Missouri River and to generate electrical power to nine states.

And he said, "The key to this century is power—power on the farm as well as the factory—power in the country as well as the city."

From here Kennedy flies further west to Pueblo, Colo., and Monroe, Calif., to look at more water projects and at least take a peek at the political picture.

The White House calls Kennedy's trip nonpolitical and the government is the one picking up the tab. But the President also has his eyes on the senatorial contests in South Dakota and Colorado and the race for governor between former Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

In his speech here today Kennedy dropped a plug for old friend George McGovern, former food for peace director, saying he had served ably in the job.

War I Fliers Recall Their Air Battles

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP)—Fliers who piloted the legendary wood-and-canvas crates of World War I swapped memories today of their battles.

Some 20 of the survivors of the famed Lafayette Escadrille, the Lafayette Flying Corps and the French Foreign Legion gathered at Battle Creek for the first reunion air show staged as a tribute to Americans who fought for France in World War I.

A former enemy aviator—Baron Hans Georg von der Osten, 66, of the Von Richtofen squadron of the German air force—also was on hand.

The Royal Air Force was represented, too, by author Arch Whitehouse, who has written more than a dozen books on military and naval history, including the "Legion of the Lafayette." Whitehouse, 66, a resident of Montvale, N.J., signed up with the British forces and served in the trenches before moving up into the skies.

He was credited officially with shooting down 16 German planes and six kite balloons, he said. Whitehouse said he knocked down most of his victims as a gunner in a two-seater F. E. 2B—nicknamed the "Flying Piano."

Von Der Osten is credited with shooting down five British planes before he was badly wounded himself in a large air battle.

Angry Solon Adjourns Humphrey Nickel Probe

Next U.S. Spaceman Limited To Only 6 Orbits of Earth

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP) — A top American space official says astronaut Walter M. Schirra Jr. will be limited to six orbits of the earth, no matter how well his Project Mercury flight goes.

"The mission is scheduled for recovery near Midway Island after six orbits, and that is the way it will be flown," D. Brainerd Holmes, director of manned space flight programs for the United States, said Thursday.

Thus, the fact that two Soviet cosmonauts zipped around the earth for three and four days will have no immediate effect on the U.S. program.

Holmes said Schirra, a Navy commander, will be launched on his space venture in the middle of the end of September. His will be the only six-orbit mission, the space chief said. The next Mercury flight will be for 18 orbits and take a full day.

"I will commit to you that this nation will be second to none in the conquest of space," Holmes said.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration official told his audience at Virginia Polytechnic Institute he was somewhat surprised at the reaction of many qualified people to the Soviet achievement.

"If we felt that this was surprising, then we were selling the Russians short," he said. "What they have done can be traced in every aspect to a large payload of considerable capacity and reliability, fired over and over again."

"They did it—something we could not do. Far from belittling the Russians, one should have expected it."

Holmes defended Mercury astronauts John J. Glenn Jr. and Malcolm Scott Carpenter against complaints voiced at the conference here that, as military test pilots primarily, their scientific findings had been disappointingly thin.

The complaints were coupled with a suggestion that NASA train scientists as future astronauts.

"Glenn and Carpenter didn't just sit there and stew about whether their retro-rockets would get them back to earth," Holmes said. "They went about their missions with keen interest, and made good observations."

Holmes said it would be impossible to include scientists among the first Apollo crews unless they were qualified to act as pilots.

In great detail, he outlined the steps by which three U.S. astronauts are to be launched—by an advanced Saturn C5 rocket—some time before the end of this decade, in an Apollo spacecraft, into orbit around the moon.

Two of the spacemen will leave the Apollo craft in a small capsule, or "bug," to land on the moon.

Holmes said that Apollo spacemen who approach the moon in the "bug" will be able to change their minds about landing at the last moment should conditions on the moon appear to be too dangerous.

Should the "bug" lose its propellant power, he said, the two men would be able to escape from the capsule and grab lifelines to transfer back to the mother craft, which will be capable of going after them if they are in trouble.

Holmes said the "bug" would detach from the Apollo craft at an appropriate time when it is in orbit 100 miles above the moon. The two men would fly close to the lunar surface, hover a minute, and, if they wished, still could get back to the mother ship before it was out of sight.

The first Apollo mission will spend only one day on the moon. Holmes said some consideration is being given to landing on the moon during the "earth-glow"—that is, at night, to avoid the problem of intense heat.

Moscow in Carnival Mood For Arrival of Space Twins

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet capital donned carnival attire today for the arrival of the Soviet space twins, Maj. Andrian Nikolayev and Lt. Col. Pavel Popovich. Soviet officials announced that their big parade will come Saturday.

The astronauts' families have already been brought to Moscow for the festival. The celebration got an added boost by the announcement that air force day, previously scheduled for Sunday, will be moved forward to Saturday. Both astronauts are air force pilots.

The astronauts themselves have been flown from Karaganda, their landing area in Kazakhstan about 1,500 miles southeast of Moscow, to a nearer designated base. There they continued to rest and to undergo examinations of the effects of weightlessness during their record orbital flights that kept them in space four and three days.

Both were reported feeling excellent and apparently sprucing up for the big reception. A brief shot on Moscow television showed Nikolayev lathered up, as a barber stood by to shave his growth of beard from four days in space.

The bright weather that prevailed in Moscow during most of the astronauts' flights gave way Thursday night to rain, but preparations went ahead for their triumphal arrival. Red Square was full of cranes and construction machinery as platoons of workers threw up viewing stands and other trimmings that go with Moscow celebrations.

Tradition calls for the nation's newest heroes to be flown to Moscow in a big plane with a fighter escort. Premier Khrushchev will meet them at Moscow Airport and ride with them into the city where thousands will jam Red Square to cheer them. Khrushchev, who has been vacationing on the Black Sea, has already promised to meet the space twins in Moscow.

Diplomatic quarters predicted that Khrushchev may use the space triumph to make some dramatic political gesture in the near future. There has been no official hint of what it might be. However, there is speculation Khrushchev may announce his intention of going to New York for the U.N. General Assembly meeting, which starts in September, with the expectation of meeting President Kennedy without the burdensome formality of preparing a four-power summit conference.

Khrushchev's aim, diplomatic quarters indicate, would be to try to get broad public support for the Soviet version of how to disarm and of how to settle the German and Berlin problems.

Humphrey, honorary chairman and former head of the M. A. Hanna Co. of Cleveland, Ohio, had expected to resume the witness chair at 8 a.m.

He was scheduled for further questioning by the special Senate stockpiling committee about "destruction of records" relating to the multimillion-dollar nickel deal.

But Symington delayed the session an hour and then began reading a 10-page statement which bitterly assailed Humphrey and his testimony Thursday.

The senator quoted Humphrey as telling a newsmen "they don't attack Ike (former President Dwight D. Eisenhower) direct so they are attacking me. This is a stab in the back."

Symington said the Senate inquiry does "not intend to let Mr. Humphrey hide behind former President Eisenhower; this because we intend to find out, once (Continued on Page 2)

Flushed with anger, Humphrey said he does not repent anything he has said.

Rhodes Challenges New Worker Data

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—State Auditor James A. Rhodes has challenged what he calls "a half-truth assertion that Ohio gained 100,000 new workers in 1959."

The Republican candidate for governor said the figure for 1959 is true, but "the whole truth is that we had dropped 223,000 jobs the previous year."

Continuing his campaign for governor and for his plan to add 200,000 jobs in Ohio, Rhodes said: "In 1958 we dropped 223,000 jobs and picked up approximately 100,000 in 1959. In 1960, we picked up a bit more, but did not reach the 1957 figure (a peak of 3,233,000). In 1961, we lost 100,000 jobs."

Rhodes said Ohio must act boldly to provide a variety of good industrial sites, industrial diversification and entice new industry and encourage expansion of existing industry.

Ohioan's 'Dare' Is Accepted

Symington Calls Halt To Heated Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., angrily accused former Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey of insulting the Senate today and refused to hear further testimony on nickel deals involving Humphrey's mining interests.

Symington opened the second day of Humphrey's testimony by objecting to comments the former top Eisenhower administration official had made to the press.

He said the Humphrey statement Thursday was an insult to the Senate in that it charged the stockpile investigation was politically motivated.

Brushing aside demands by Sen. Prescott Bush, R-Conn., for a vote, Symington said he planned to adjourn the hearings for further investigation.

Humphrey started to make a statement, demanding to be heard.

"You wouldn't dare," Humphrey said, and Symington's gavel banged down.

Young Praises JFK Foreign Policy

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Stephen M. Young, D-Ohio, who recently blasted in a Senate speech what he called "the right wing lunatic fringe," has followed with a strong statement in support of President Kennedy's foreign policy.

Young, a frequent critic of contentions that a "no win" policy dominates the administration, said "the Communist bloc has made no further territorial gains" since Kennedy became President.

In a letter to constituents, Young also credited Kennedy with correcting the space program begun under President Dwight D. Eisenhower. Young called the Eisenhower program "confused and indefinite."

GI Insurance OK'd For Disabled Vets

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House has rushed through a bill to reopen the GI insurance program to disabled veterans of World War II and the Korean War—but not to able-bodied ones.

The bill now goes to the Senate, where sentiment is strong for letting all 16 million veterans of the two wars apply for the government insurance, as the House bill originally provided.

Angry Solon Adjourns Humphrey Nickel Probe

Next U.S. Spaceman Limited To Only 6 Orbits of Earth

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP)—A top American space official says astronaut Walter M. Schirra Jr. will be limited to six orbits of the earth, no matter how well his Project Mercury flight goes.

"The mission is scheduled for recovery near Midway Island after six orbits, and that is the way it will be flown," D. Brainerd Holmes, director of manned space flight programs for the United States, said Thursday.

Thus, the fact that two Soviet cosmonauts zipped around the earth for three and four days will have no immediate effect on the U.S. program.

Holmes said Schirra, a Navy commander, will be launched on his space venture in the middle or at the end of September. His will be the only six-orbit mission, the space chief said. The next Mercury flight will be for 18 orbits and take a full day.

"I will commit to you that this nation will be second to none in the conquest of space," Holmes said.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration official told his audience at Virginia Polytechnic Institute he was somewhat surprised at the reaction of many qualified people to the Soviet achievement.

"If we felt that this was surprising, then we were selling the Russians short," he said. "What they have done can be traced in every aspect to a large payload of considerable capacity and reliability, fired over and over again. They did it—something we could not do. Far from belittling the Russians, one should have expected it."

Holmes defended Mercury astronauts John J. Glenn Jr. and Malcolm Scott Carpenter against complaints voiced at the conference here that, as military test pilots primarily, their scientific findings had been disappointingly thin.

The complaints were coupled with a suggestion that NASA train scientists as future astronauts.

"Glenn and Carpenter didn't just sit there and stew about whether their retrorockets would get them back to earth," Holmes said. "They went about their missions with keen interest, and made good observations."

Holmes said it would be impossible to include scientists among the first Apollo crews unless they were qualified to act as pilots.

In great detail, he outlined the steps by which three U.S. astronauts are to be launched—by an advanced Saturn C5 rocket—some time before the end of this decade, in an Apollo spacecraft, into orbit around the moon.

Two of the spacemen will leave the Apollo craft in a small capsule, or "bug," to land on the moon.

Holmes said that Apollo spacemen who approach the moon in the "bug" will be able to change their minds about landing at the last moment should conditions on the moon appear to be too dangerous.

Should the "bug" lose its propellant power, he said, the two men would be able to escape from the capsule and grab lifelines to transfer back to the mother craft, which will be capable of going after them if they are in trouble.

Holmes said the "bug" would detach from the Apollo craft at an appropriate time when it is in orbit 100 miles above the moon. The two men would fly close to the lunar surface, hover a minute, and, if they wished, still could get back to the mother ship before it was out of sight.

The first Apollo mission will spend only one day on the moon.

Holmes said some consideration is being given to landing on the moon during the "earth-glow"—that is, at night, to avoid the problem of intense heat.

Moscow in Carnival Mood For Arrival of Space Twins

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet capital donned carnival attire today for the arrival of the Soviet space twins, Maj. Andrian Nikolayev and Lt. Col. Pavel Popovich. Soviet officials announced that their big parade will come Saturday.

The astronauts' families have already been brought to Moscow for the festival. The celebration got an added boost by the announcement that air force day, previously scheduled for Sunday, will be moved forward to Saturday. Both astronauts are air force pilots.

The astronauts themselves have been flown from Karaganda, their landing area in Kazakhstan about 1,500 miles southeast of Moscow, to a nearer undesignated base. There they continued to rest and to undergo examinations of the effects of weightlessness during their record orbital flights that kept them in space four and three days.

Both were reported feeling excellent and apparently sprucing up for the big reception. A brief shot on Moscow television showed Nikolayev lathered up, as a barber stood by to shave his growth of beard from four days in space.

The bright weather that prevailed in Moscow during most of the astronauts' flights gave way Thursday night to rain, but preparations went ahead for their triumphant arrival. Red Square was full of cranes and construction machinery as platoons of workers threw up viewing stands and other trimmings that go with Moscow celebrations.

Tradition calls for the nation's newest heroes to be flown to Moscow.

Finkbines Get Abortion OK

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—Sherri Finkbine was told by Sweden's Medical Board today she can have an abortion here to end a pregnancy she fears will bring her a drug-deformed baby.

"I can't say how happy and relieved I feel," she said, tears streaming down her cheeks. "A heavy burden has been lifted from me."

It was not announced when the operation would be performed.

The 30-year-old Arizona housewife and television performer burst out crying when her teacher husband Robert brought her the news.

They arrived here Aug. 5 after Arizona courts declined to sanction an abortion there.

Mrs. Finkbine said she had taken a tranquilizer drug—thalidomide—which has been blamed for deformed babies born in Europe.

cow in a big plane with a fighter escort. Premier Khrushchev will meet them at Moscow Airport and ride with them into the city where thousands will jam Red Square to cheer them. Khrushchev, who has been vacationing on the Black Sea, has already promised to meet the space twins in Moscow.

Diplomatic quarters predicted that Khrushchev may use the space triumph to make some dramatic political gesture in the near future. There has been no official hint of what it might be. However, there is speculation Khrushchev may announce his intention of going to New York for the U.N. General Assembly meeting, which starts in September, with the expectation of meeting President Kennedy without the burdensome formality of preparing a four-power summit conference.

Khrushchev's aim, diplomatic quarters indicate, would be to try to get broad public support for the Soviet version of how to disarm and of how to settle the German and Berlin problems.

Traffic Judge Uses Unusual 'Punishment'

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—When Judge W. Blair Gibbons took over this beach city's traffic court last October, it didn't take him long to become concerned about rising traffic violations.

So, he sentenced a young woman speeder to four hours of watching wreck victims brought into a receiving hospital emergency ward. Made several young male speeders don jail uniforms and sweep streets of traffic accident debris. Showed 100 violators a color-sound police movie of traffic accidents that pictured the dead, the dying, the mangled—a truck driver burning alive.

During the show two women had to be treated for nausea and shock. "I want to reduce accidents, which have killed more Americans than wars, not to mention the pain, suffering and economic loss they bring," the judge said.

Judge Gibbons, 61, is a veteran of 35 years of legal practice. He gives violators a choice of a conventional sentence or a short odd one—like five days in jail or one day of sweeping. He cut $5 off the fines of those who viewed the traffic film.

Is it working? "Traffic citations have dropped 20 per cent. Accidents appear to be down as much as 10 per cent," said the judge.

Monroe Estate Set At Half-Million

NEW YORK (AP)—Marilyn Monroe's will, filed for probate today, left an estate estimated in excess of half a million dollars. The blonde screen star died Aug. 4 of an overdose of sleeping pills.

The will, executed here on Jan. 14, 1961, was filed in New York County Surrogate's Court.

It created a $100,000 trust fund to provide $5,000 a year for the maintenance and support of Miss Monroe's mother, Gladys Baker, who is in an institution.

Ohioan's 'Dare' Is Accepted

Symington Calls Halt
To Heated Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., angrily accused former Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey of insulting the Senate today and refused to hear further testimony on nickel deals involving Humphrey's mining interests.

Symington opened the second day of Humphrey's testimony by objecting to comments the former top Eisenhower administration official had made to the press.

He said the Humphrey statement Thursday was an insult to the Senate in that it charged the stockpile investigation was politically motivated.

Brushing aside demands by Sen. Prescott Bush, R-Conn., for a vote, Symington said he planned to adjourn the hearings for further investigation.

Humphrey started to make a statement, demanding to be heard.

"You wouldn't dare," Humphrey said, and Symington's gavel banged down.

"This hearing is adjourned," snapped Symington. "Don't ever try to tell a United States senator what he would dare or wouldn't dare."

Humphrey never got to make his reply comment from the witness chair but after the uproar subsided he renewed his criticism and added to it in the glare of camera flashes.

Flushed with anger, Humphrey said he does not repent anything he has said.

"This statement today has provided ample proof of the motivation of this committee," he said. "This is self evidence of the prejudice with which the whole hearings have been held."

"I did not attack the U.S. Senate. I attacked the bitterness and prejudice in which these hearings have been held."

Humphrey, honorary chairman and former head of the M. A. Hanna Co. of Cleveland, Ohio, had expected to resume the witness chair at 8 a.m.

He was scheduled for further questioning by the special Senate stockpiling committee about "destruction of records" relating to the multimillion-dollar nickel deal.

But Symington delayed the session an hour and then began reading a 10-page statement which bitterly assailed Humphrey and his testimony Thursday.

The senator quoted Humphrey as telling a newsmen "they don't attack Ike (former President Dwight D. Eisenhower) direct so they are attacking me. This is a stab in the back."

Rhodes Challenges New Worker Data

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—State Auditor James A. Rhodes has challenged what he calls "a half true assertion that Ohio gained 100,000 new workers in 1959."

The Republican candidate for governor said the figure for 1959 is true, but "the whole truth is that we had dropped 223,000 jobs the previous year."

Continuing his campaign for governor and for his plan to add 200,000 jobs in Ohio, Rhodes said: "In 1958 we dropped 223,000 jobs and picked up approximately 100,000 in 1959. In 1960, we picked up a bit more, but did not reach the 1957 figure (a peak of 3,233,000). In 1961, we lost 100,000 jobs."

Rhodes said Ohio must act boldly to provide a variety of good industrial sites, industrial diversification and entice new industry and encourage expansion of existing industry.

Cuyahoga Set For Survey

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A new traffic study, which may provide data for projecting needs to 1985, is to be undertaken by Cuyahoga County.

The traffic origin and destination study, to include Lorain and Lake counties, was announced at the opening of a two-day transportation seminar here Thursday.

The new project will update a similar one made in 1952.

State Highway Director Everett S. Preston stressed the need for uniform planning to meet urban transportation needs.

"The need for uniformity in planning has become more apparent as the expressway network are completed," he said. "Our state and nation is shrinking in size."

Stock Market Volume Light

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market was mixed with most changes very small early this afternoon. Volume was light.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks showed a .2 gain at 222.3 with the industrials ahead .3, rails unchanged and utilities up .3.

Prices opened on an irregular note and held steady. At one time during the morning there was a flurry of activity in the aerospace issues, Thursday's market stars. Some held small gains.

Martin-Marietta was ahead about 1/4 in fairly active dealings. The company is reported to be in line to be named prime contractor for the huge Titan III space booster program although nothing official has come from the Defense Department.

Utilities edged to the upside, as did chemicals and aircrafts. Although most changes were fractional, some spotty improvement produced a few 1 and 2 point gains.

Ohioan's 'Dare'

and for all, whether Mr. Humphrey, literally a few hours before he took office, gave final approval to a deal which returned him — according to the government auditors—over 300 per cent profit and windfalls as against cost, with no risk on his part whatever.

"The American people will decide who stabbed whom in the back," Symington snapped.

Symington said Humphrey "now impugns the motives of the Senate and this subcommittee."

Symington said that Thursday the subcommittee allowed Humphrey "to make many speeches in reply to questions, many of which he did not answer."

"There were some discrepancies in his testimony, however, and the subcommittee intended to obtain written clarification from him on such matters."

Symington said that when Humphrey appeared before the Senate Finance Committee in January 1956 at the time of his confirmation as secretary of the Treasury, he said of the controversial nickel contracts:

"I have no connection with it whatever."

Thursday, Symington continued, Humphrey said he "made the final decision on these contracts."

Symington said Humphrey's company had "a free ride from the government" in building a $22-million smelter and then Humphrey showed his opinion of government Thursday by testifying:

"We were in the mining business and made a success of it and GSA, or whatever the number is, didn't know anything about it."

The reference, in the question-and-answer portion of Humphrey's testimony Thursday, was to the General Services Administration which has charge of the stockpile operations.

Symington said Humphrey disputed profit figures on the nickel and mining deals even though "they were taken from the income tax files of the Hanna company."

Although Humphrey insisted Hanna profits were only $7.5 million, Symington said government auditors "consider that the profits and windfalls in the contracts total at least $34 million, on a total production cost of $41,199,000."

The senator said Humphrey's nickel operations included improper items as part of cost to the government and "we believe that the U.S. government has a clear case against the Hanna company, not only against their income tax returns, but also to recover at least $1 million because of faulty and improper charges that violated the contract."

Electric Freak Causes Havoc

VALDESE, N.C. (AP)—Imagine that you're working in a bakery. Suddenly, the conveyor belts carrying the bread stop, reverse, and being hurling loaves at you.

It would be perplexing, to say the least. And it happened here. Suppose you're working at a hosiery mill. The machines stop, reverse, and needles become jammed with thread, gears break, socks become entangled.

These and other nightmarish things occurred here Tuesday when machines turned on their operators because of a freak electric power disturbance. Telephone service also was interrupted, adding to the confusion. No one could find out what had gone wrong.

A Duke Power Co. spokesman said it was all caused by a phase reversal in a 44,000-volt line.

The disturbance, which occurred when equipment was being installed at a power company substation, affected only three-phase motors, and not the single-phase types used in household appliances.

Ex-Convict Claims To Know Whereabouts of Mail Bandits

BOSTON (AP)—A published report today said a Rhode Island ex-convict claims to know who pulled off the $1.5 million mail robbery at Plymouth Tuesday. It said he wants to make a deal before he talks.

As the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston raised the amount of the nation's largest cash robbery by more than $50,000—to an official figure of $1,551,277—police circulated throughout the nation composite drawings of two of the white glove gang.

The composites bore striking resemblances to the notorious Bobby R. Wilcoxon, 32, formerly of Duke, Okla., and Albert F. Nussbaum, 27, wanted by the FBI for the murder of a Brooklyn, N.Y., bank guard.

Even with 60 postal inspectors gathered from as far distant as Pittsburgh and Miami, solving the crime would be a long, arduous process, said the nation's chief postal inspector, Henry B. Montague, 50, but he was confident the holdup would be cracked eventually.

The Boston Globe said the unidentified ex-convict, reported to be acquainted with many Rhode Island hoodlums, told Harrie C.

Gill, Rhode Island State Police superintendent, he not only knows who did the robbery but "where they are right now."

Another published report said a Boston woman driving to Cape Cod Tuesday night saw a convertible headed north and a tan sedan going south exchange what appeared to be headlight signals—two short and one long flash—at about the time and place of the ambush near Plymouth.

Authorities offered no comment on the possible significance of the report.

Bernard Domanski, 45, of Central Falls, R.I., a former member of the Harvey Bistany bank robbery gang, was picked up in that state and questioned before being taken to Massachusetts State Prison at Walpole to serve time for parole violation. But Montague said neither Domanski nor anyone else could be said to be a suspect as of the moment.

The money, being shipped from Cape Cod banks to the Federal Reserve at Boston, was in registered mail pouches guarded only by the two-man crew of the mail van, armed with .38 caliber pistols.

Showdown on Missile Base Strike Appears in Offing

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—The stage is set today for a showdown in a strike which has shadowed the nation's moonshot program here since Tuesday.

The Marshall Space Flight Center, representing the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, Thursday night appealed to the National Labor Relations Board to go to court to break the strike.

The potential cost of the strike is $1 million a day to this country's space research and development program, Marshall officials said.

And they predict the cost will increase if the stoppage continues and vital construction projects—six of them directly affecting the Saturn — fall further behind their schedules.

Local 558 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers set up pickets at three gates Tuesday, protesting employment of non-union workers by Barco Electrical Construction Co. of Pensacola, Fla.

Most of the 1,500-building-trades employees at the Marshall Center and at the Army Missile Command have since honored the pickets.

But Barco, subcontractor to Greenhut Construction Co. of Pensacola, Greenhut and the North Alabama Contractors Association Wednesday also asked NLRB to seek an injunction to end the workers back on their jobs.

Carlton Bryan, head of a four-man NLRB investigating team which is checking into the possibility that federal labor laws are being violated, said Thursday, "there is no indication how long we will be here. I can't predict a time target."

Government officials met in urgent session at Washington to consider applying for a federal court injunction to end the picketing, but no decision was reached and an official said the situation was still under investigation.

Cuyahoga Set For Survey

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A new traffic study, which may provide data for projecting needs to 1985, is to be undertaken by Cuyahoga County.

The traffic origin and destination study, to include Lorain and Lake counties, was announced at the opening of a two-day transportation seminar here Thursday. The new project will update a similar one made in 1952.

State Highway Director Everett S. Preston stressed the need for uniform planning to meet urban transportation needs.

"The need for uniformity in planning has become more apparent as the expressway network works are completed," he said. "Our state and nation is shrinking in size."

Stock Market Volume Light

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market was mixed with most changes very small early this afternoon. Volume was light.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks showed a 2 gain at 222.3 with the industrials ahead 3, rails unchanged and utilities up 3.

Prices opened on an irregular note and held steady. At one time during the morning there was a flurry of activity in the aerospace issues, Thursday's market stars. Some held small gains.

Martin-Marietta was ahead about 1/2 in fairly active dealings. The company is reported to be in line to be named prime contractor for the huge Titan III space booster program although nothing official has come from the Defense Department.

Utilities edged to the upside, as did chemicals and aircrafts. Although most changes were fractional, some spotty improvement produced a few 1 and 2 point gains.

Ohioan's 'Dare'

and for all, whether Mr. Humphrey, literally a few hours before he took office, gave final approval to a deal which returned him — according to the government auditors—over 300 per cent profit and windfalls as against cost, with no risk on his part whatever.

"The American people will decide who stabbed whom in the back," Symington snapped.

Symington said Humphrey "now impugns the motives of the Senate and this subcommittee."

Symington said that Thursday the subcommittee allowed Humphrey "to make many speeches in reply to questions, many of which he did not answer."

"There were some discrepancies in his testimony, however, and the subcommittee intended to obtain written clarification from him on such matters."

Symington said that when Humphrey appeared before the Senate Finance Committee in January 1955 at the time of his confirmation as secretary of the Treasury, he said of the controversial nickel contracts:

"I have no connection with it whatever."

Thursday, Symington continued, Humphrey said he "made the final decision on these contracts."

Symington said Humphrey's company had "a free ride from the government" in building a $22-million smelter and then Humphrey showed his opinion of government Thursday by testifying:

"We were in the mining business and made a success of it and GSA, or whatever the number is, didn't know anything about it."

The reference, in the question-and-answer portion of Humphrey's testimony Thursday, was to the General Services Administration which has charge of the stockpile operations.

Symington said Humphrey disputed profit figures on the nickel and mining deals even though "they were taken from the income tax files of the Hanna company."

"Either the Hanna income tax returns are wrong, or Mr. Humphrey is wrong," Symington continued.

Although Humphrey insisted Hanna profits were only $7.5 million, Symington said government auditors "consider that the profits and windfalls in the contracts total at least $34 million, on a total production cost of $41,199,000."

The senator said Humphrey's nickel operations included improper items as part of cost to the government and "we believe that the U.S. government has a clear case against the Hanna company, not only against their income tax returns, but also to recover at least $1 million because of faulty and improper charges that violated the contract."

Electric Freak Causes Havoc

VALDESE, N.C. (AP)—Imagine that you're working in a bakery. Suddenly, the conveyor belts carrying the bread stop, reverse, and being hurled loaves at you.

It would be perplexing, to say the least. And it happened here. Suppose you're working at a hosiery mill. The machines stop, reverse, and needles become jammed with thread, gears break, socks become entangled.

These and other nightmarish things occurred here Tuesday when machines turned on their operators because of a freak electric power disturbance. Telephone service also was interrupted, adding to the confusion. No one could find out what had gone wrong.

A Duke Power Co. spokesman said it was all caused by a phase reversal in a 44,000-volt line.

The disturbance, which occurred when equipment was being installed at a power company substation, affected only three-phase motors, and not the single-phase types used in household appliances.

Ex-Convict Claims To Know Whereabouts of Mail Bandits

BOSTON (AP)—A published report today said a Rhode Island ex-convict claims to know who pulled off the $1.5 million mail robbery at Plymouth Tuesday. It said he wants to make a deal before he talks.

As the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston raised the amount of the nation's largest cash robbery by more than $50,000—to an official figure of $1,551,277—police circulated throughout the nation composite drawings of two of the white glove gang.

The composites bore striking resemblances to the notorious Bobby R. Wilcox, 32, formerly of Duke, Okla., and Albert F. Nussbaum, 27, wanted by the FBI for the murder of a Brooklyn, N.Y., bank guard.

Even with 60 postal inspectors gathered from as far distant as Pittsburgh and Miami, solving the crime would be a long, arduous process, said the nation's chief postal inspector, Henry B. Montague, 50, but he was confident the holdup would be cracked eventually.

The Boston Globe said the unidentified ex-convict, reported to be acquainted with many Rhode Island hoodlums, told Harrie C.

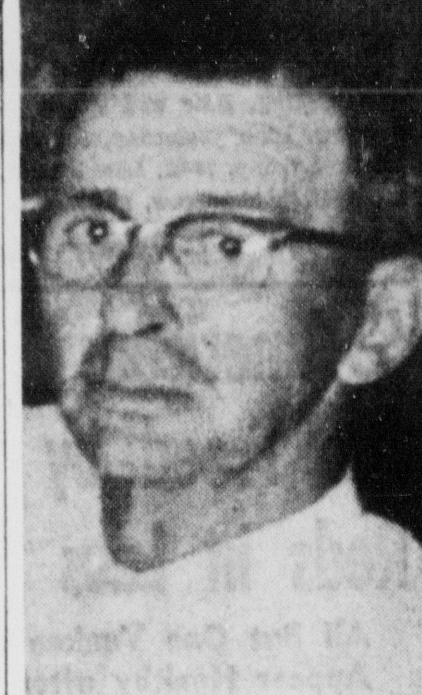

Gill, Rhode Island State Police superintendent, he not only knows who did the robbery but "where they are right now."

Another published report said a Boston woman driving to Cape Cod Tuesday night saw a convertible headed north and a tan sedan going south exchange what appeared to be headlight signals—two short and one long flash—at about the time and place of the ambush near Plymouth.

Authorities offered no comment on the possible significance of the report.

Bernard Domanski, 45, of Central Falls, R.I., a former member of the Harvey Bistany bank robbery gang, was picked up in that state and questioned before being taken to Massachusetts State Prison at Walpole to serve time for parole violation. But Montague said neither Domanski nor anyone else could be said to be a suspect as of the moment.

The money, being shipped from Cape Cod banks to the Federal Reserve at Boston, was in registered mail pouches guarded only by the two-man crew of the mail van, armed with .38 caliber pistols.

Cattle Feeder Profits Run Above Average

WASHINGTON (AP) — Profits realized by cattle feeders during the feeding season ending this mid-summer were larger than in the previous season and larger than average.

Reporting this today, the Agriculture Department said the margin over major costs on a choice 1,050-pound steer averaged $36.88 during the past season compared with $13.60 in the previous season, $29.07 in the 1959-60 season and a recent peak of $71.78 in the 1957-58 season.

A feeder is one who buys lean, unfinished cattle from off grasslands or ranges and feeds them grain and other concentrate to produce a top quality meat animal.

The department said profits are expected to be larger during the current season ending early next summer. It based this forecast on prospects of an increased supply of unfinished cattle and calves and a good consumer demand for beef.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Milk cow numbers on farm declined one per cent during the year ended July 1, the Agriculture Department reported today.

The number was indicated at 17,270,000 head compared with 17,395,000 a year earlier. This represents a decline of slightly more than 10 million head since 1945. But milk production has increased considerably during this interim, reflecting improvements in herds.

The department said the reduction in milk cow numbers in recent years has been widespread. Last year, the South Atlantic region led with a 2.6 per cent decline. The smallest decline was in the west north central states, it being three-fourths of one per cent.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department reported today that meat production under federal inspection totaled 410 million pounds last week.

This compared with 411 million the previous week and with 414 million in the like week a year ago.

UPS AND DOWNS ABOUT EVEN—Public Debt and Budget Expenditures rise and fall about evenly for the fiscal years 1938-62, these charts released by the White House indicate. The story they tell is part of the reason for President Kennedy's decision not to ask for a tax cut till first of the year.

Ohio Industrialist Returns To Spotlight He Deplores

WASHINGTON (AP) —George M. Humphrey first came to Washington with a strong distaste for personal publicity, federal and government spending.

But Thursday, he moved back into the spotlight he deplores as he testified at Senate hearing on stockpiling of metals.

Humphrey's lack of ceremony and his sense of economy remained intact, however, during more than four years as secretary of the Treasury in the Eisenhower administration.

In one of his first official acts, he ordered the removal of a uniformed guard who kept a constant vigil at the door to his private elevator in the Treasury building.

Thus in one blow he struck at pomp and spending.

On another occasion, Humphrey displayed his informality by routing directly to President Dwight D. Eisenhower a letter from a taxpayer, without going through the routine step of having a copy made for his own files.

Across the letter, Humphrey scrawled, "Sometimes I think the taxpayers know more about taxation than the politicians."

Very little has been heard of Humphrey, now 72, since he left the Eisenhower Cabinet in 1957.

And, except in the upper reaches of big business, little was heard of him before he joined the government. Eisenhower didn't even know him until two days before he selected him as his first secretary of the Treasury.

"I have never been strong for personal publicity," said Humphrey on the day his selection was announced.

During his Cabinet years, Humphrey was devoted to balanced budgets, tight money policies, curbs on welfare and foreign aid programs and "trickle down" tax cuts.

A native of Cheboygan, Mich., Humphrey grew up in Saginaw and went into law practice there with his father's firm after graduation from the University of Michigan in 1912.

Moving to Cleveland in 1917, he became general counsel of the M. A. Hanna Co. By 1929, he was president of the mining firm—and enormously successful. Under Humphrey's leadership, Hanna moved from a loss position of $2 million a year to a profit, in 1952, of $22.8 million.

When he joined the Eisenhower Cabinet, Humphrey's annual income from salaries and bonuses (but excluding dividends) exceeded $300,000. His Cabinet pay was $22,500. After four years in the lower income bracket, Humphrey hankered to get back into business, and to spend more time with his wife, three children and nine grandchildren.

He's now honorary board chairman and director of Hanna and is a director and member of the executive committee of National Steel Corp.

Man Turns Thug To Pay For Small Son's Funeral

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Ten days ago, 4-year-old Richard Bullock accidentally shot and killed his 3-year-old brother Michael while playing with his father's loaded pistol.

Today, police said the boys' father admitted he used the same weapon in an armed robbery to get money to help meet funeral expenses.

Police are holding Charles Augustus Bullock Jr., 24, for the robbery of a liquor store Wednesday night.

The World Today

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's not normal.

An American election campaign begins soon, for seats in Congress. And there's not an explosion or a deep, distracting emotional disturbance in sight.

History says this can't last. There has been some surging or disquieting situation before each election going all the way back to 1948 when President Truman defeated Thomas E. Dewey.

In the midst of the presidential campaign that year the United States was trying to break the Berlin blockade — not knowing where it would end — which the Russians had begun in the spring.

By the time of the 1950 congressional elections the United States was at war in Korea while here at home the country was being split apart on the Communist issue raised by Sen. Joseph McCarthy.

And, on top of that, just a few days before the election a couple of assassins tried to kill Truman.

The Korean War was still going on its sickening way, like a grisly ghost in the background, by the time of the 1952 presidential race. Republicans made it a central issue and Dwight D. Eisenhower, promised, if he beat Adlai Stevenson, to go to Korea. He won and went.

There was no foreign crisis during the 1954 congressional campaign—the Korean War was over then—but there was an extraordinary distraction, with a deep emotional undercurrent, here at home.

The censure proceedings against McCarthy were being held and, after the elections, resulted in his condemnation by the Senate.

But there was a shocking explosion in the midst of the 1956 presidential contest between Eisenhower and Stevenson. In fact, most of it happened just a few days before the election.

The British-French-Israeli attack on Egypt began, the Hungarians revolted, and Russia moved in and smashed the revolt.

Calm of a kind enveloped the 1958 congressional campaign, but it was far from complete. The Red Chinese were bombarding the offshore islands of the American ally, Chiang Kaishek, and no one could be sure of the outcome.

There was just a little national uneasiness.

In 1960, except for the developing chaos in the Congo, all the explosions, and there never had been anything like them, burst before the presidential race.

But the reverberations hung over the campaign.

It was in that year, in the spring, that the Soviets shot down the American U2 spy plane over Russia, capturing the pilot, Francis Gary Powers.

And right on top of that, and because of that, Premier Khrushchev insulted Eisenhower, broke up his summit conference with him, and called off the American President's scheduled trip to Russia.

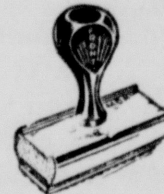

Up till now in 1962 nothing has happened to jitter the American nervous system—no crisis, no explosion, no emotional issue—at home or abroad.

The recent Soviet achievement—putting two men into orbit at the same time—had no crisis, no threats, no tension for Americans. It was simply a performance.

Something you should think about if you're about to buy a truck:

If all trucks were built the same way, cost the same to keep up, were worth the same at trade-in . . . then probably the price tag would be your only concern. It can't be, of course, because some trucks have more quality than others. And marks of quality are the real keys to low cost. Cattle Feeder Profits Run Above Average

WASHINGTON (AP) — Profits realized by cattle feeders during the feeding season ending this mid-summer were larger than in the previous season and larger than average.

Reporting this today, the Agriculture Department said the margin over major costs on a choice 1,050-pound steer averaged $36.88 during the past season compared with $13.60 in the previous season, $29.07 in the 1959-60 season and a recent peak of $71.78 in the 1957-58 season.

A feeder is one who buys lean, unfinished cattle from off grasslands or ranges and feeds them grain and other concentrate to produce a top quality meat animal.

The department said profits are expected to be larger during the current season ending early next summer. It based this forecast on prospects of an increased supply of unfinished cattle and calves and a good consumer demand for beef.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Milk cow numbers on farm declined one per cent during the year ended July 1, the Agriculture Department reported today.

The number was indicated at 17,270,000 head compared with 17,395,000 a year earlier. This represents a decline of slightly more than 10 million head since 1945. But milk production has increased considerably during this interim, reflecting improvements in herds.

The department said the reduction in milk cow numbers in recent years has been widespread. Last year, the South Atlantic region led with a 2.6 per cent decline. The smallest decline was in the west north central states, it being three-fourths of one per cent.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department reported today that meat production under federal inspection totaled 410 million pounds last week.

This compared with 411 million the previous week and with 414 million in the like week a year ago.

Cloture Puts Solons on Edge

Senate Tempers Grow Short under Ruling

WASHINGTON (AP)—Unaccustomed as its members are to speaking briefly, the Senate operating under cloture has an acrid atmosphere that forecasts new troubles for President Kennedy's legislative program.

Under the cloture rule, unused for 35 years until it was invoked by a 63-27 vote Tuesday, each senator is limited to a total of one hour's talk while the administration's communications satellite bill is before the body.

A full day's experience in its operation Wednesday left the Senate short in temper and accomplishments but long on scars that may not be healed when other measures are taken up under the customarily unlimited debate.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, who has the principal responsibility for plotting the President's program through the Senate, jumped on the bill's opponents for abusing the rules by forcing frequent quorum call.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., who said he hoped he could kill "this lousy bill," took out after Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont.

Presiding at the time, Metcalf was about to submit to the Senate itself Mansfield's point of order that opponents were engaging in "dilatory tactics" in violation of the cloture rule. Long demanded to be heard but Metcalf said the point wasn't debatable.

"Don't give your colleague (Mansfield) the whole damn floor," Long roared.

Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., another opponent of the bill quitted Long and the Louisiana senator subsided temporarily.

This and other demonstrations caused some of cloture's best friends—who for years have argued how wonderful it would be to be able to seal up a filibuster inside an iron-clad limitation on talk—to express some public doubts about the way things were going.

Ohio Industrialist Returns To Spotlight He Deplores

WASHINGTON (AP) —George M. Humphrey first came to Washington with a strong distaste for personal publicity, federal and government spending.

But Thursday, he moved back into the spotlight he deplores as he testified at Senate hearing on stockpiling of metals.

Humphrey's lack of ceremony and his sense of economy remained intact, however, during more than four years as secretary of the Treasury in the Eisenhower administration.

In one of his first official acts, he ordered the removal of a uniform guard who kept a constant vigil at the door to his private elevator in the Treasury building.

Thus in one blow he struck at pomp and spending.

On another occasion, Humphrey displayed his informality by routing directly to President Dwight D. Eisenhower a letter from a taxpayer, without going through the routine step of having a copy made for his own files.

Across the letter, Humphrey scrawled, "Sometimes I think the taxpayers know more about taxation than the politicians."

Very little has been heard of Humphrey, now 72, since he left the Eisenhower Cabinet in 1957.

And, except in the upper reaches of big business, little was heard of him before he joined the government. Eisenhower didn't even know him until two days before he selected him as his first secretary of the Treasury.

"I have never been strong for personal publicity," said Humphrey on the day his selection was announced.

During his Cabinet years, Humphrey was devoted to balanced budgets, tight money policies, curbs on welfare and foreign aid programs and "trickle down" tax cuts.

A native of Cheboygan, Mich., Humphrey grew up in Saginaw and went into law practice there with his father's firm after graduation from the University of Michigan in 1912.

Moving to Cleveland in 1917, he became general counsel of the M. A. Hanna Co. By 1929, he was president of the mining firm—and enormously successful. Under Humphrey's leadership, Hanna moved from a loss position of $2

No Shelter Funds

Congress is not buying the idea that what the United States needs to protect its citizens during the interminable cold war is a massive fallout shelter program. In one of Congress' most inclusive rejections of an administration request, the House Appropriations Committee approved only $75 million of the $695 million requested.

Virtually all of the approved funds is for current projects involving investigation of possible natural shelters and research activities. None will be available for a crash program of shelter construction, for which the President had requested $460 million.

The widely publicized construction program (perhaps too widely ballyhooed for its own good) brought forth much criticism from members of Congress and the public, on many grounds. Its fantastic cost (the $460 million was only the first step of

Champagne and Budgets

French champagne producers last year turned out a postwar record of 54 million bottles. But the United States bought about the same number as in previous years — 2. million.

This led the French Interprofessional Champagne Committee to comment: "It is certain that a country of 180 million, whose riches seem without limit, could do much better by champagne. Patience and perseverance would seem to be indicated."

Junior Capitalists Doing OK

By JOY STILLEY (For Hal Boyle)

NEW YORK (AP)—My young daughter has made a premature entrance into the world of commerce. She is doing pretty well for a 12-year-old, too.

In a financial situation so disastrous that she didn't know where her next ice cream cone was coming from, Gay decided this summer it was essential to chase the wolf away from the door by her own efforts.

Enlisting the aid of two equally indigent friends, she started a nursery camp for youngsters in the neighborhood.

Entrance requirements for this establishment were made lenient — any candidate old enough to clutch 35 cents in his little fist was eligible.

The trio of would-be junior capitalists signed up a respectable number of wee ones, with grateful mothers waiting in line to farm their toddlers out for a couple of hours.

The Business World

NEW YORK (AP) — Faster pumping of government funds into the economy is being tried again in lieu of a quickie tax cut.

The sum so far committed—$2 billion to speed highway building is smaller than the $5-$10 billion cut in income taxes previously considered. But the object is the same — to get a slowing down economy moving again at a brisker pace.

The administration may think up other pump-priming moves toward the same end, while it waits for the tax cut and tax reforms.

Speeding up federal spending also was used in 1960 to nudge a a five-year program, and the states would have to add another 40 per cent to Washington's contribution) was unveiled at a poor psychological moment. The nation's finances are already badly out of kilter no revenue-raising provision has been made for civil defense.

Many other critics find little solace in the prospect of draining badly needed funds from the nation's nuclear arsenal to build what they contend is an unnecessary safeguard as long as our mighty deterrent force is thrust in the face of would-be aggressors.

Every individual and each community is free to make its own decisions concerning shelters. The federal government will continue to utilize billions to produce a pair of biceps not even the most deranged dictator would consider molesting.

Alas, even Americans are not rich without limit. Most of us still have to worry about budgets, and champagne costs far more here than in Paris.

What the committee cannot understand, though, is why Americans consume 100 million bottles of Scotch whisky annually. But there's no mystery about it. They're following the good old slogan of yesteryear: A bigger bang for a buck.

From the start the camp has been successful. They earn good money for their efforts. I give mine free.

No more sleeping late for me these days. I have to get up to get the counselor in our house hold-up. The girls graciously agreed to mix the midmorning drink themselves after I balked at that job. lagging economy. Veterans insurance dividends, for example, were made earlier than usual, and tax refunds were speeded.

The $2 billion this time is being made available to such states as have highway projects far enough along to make immediate use of it. Only about a dozen are reported in that group. The object is to get construction contracts let in coming weeks and thus open up more jobs.

States believed able to use the money now include Arizona, Arkansas, Colorado, Illinois, Maine, Minnesota, North and South Carolina, Tennessee, South Dakota and Washington.

If all the $2 billion is spent within the next few months it also will trickle through the economy in the form of orders for materials, road equipment, and spending by workers who get whatever new jobs are created.

The accent is on doing a quick job. The $2 billion doesn't add to the total amount to be spent by the federal government as its part of the huge highway program. It is simply being made available now rather than in the future.

The money comes out of a special fund set up to finance the 41,000-mile interstate highway project.

The states put up part of the money but the federal government will put up most.

The states had been told they

125 Inmates Due To Study Via Television

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Some 125 inmates of the Lebanon Correctional Institution in southwestern Ohio are expected to take part as students in the midwest program for airborne television instruction this fall.

Maury Koblentz, state corrections commissioner, reported that Lebanon will be the first penal institution in the several-state region covered by the educational telecasts to take part in the program.

It will be a step of an over-all effort to boost education in Ohio's prisons, Koblentz said, adding that the Lebanon Institution alone on a limited basis. The courses are beamed from an airplane flying over Indiana.

Subjects to be taken by the prison inmates will be for grades 1-8 and six courses a day, 9 a.m. — noon and 1-4 p.m. will be projected on screens at the institution. Inmate participation will be partially voluntary and partially compulsory, the latter for those with little education.

Koblentz said his records show that of the last 2,000 men entering Ohio Penitentiary, about 85 per cent had not finished high school. Average educational level of the new convicts is the sixth grade, he said.

A DEVOTEE of the quaint cable cars that still climb the steep hills of San Francisco tells of the day a young girl with a pony tail leaned over the opening between the tracks to see the cable actually in operation. Her pony tail slipped into the slot and was whipped around the cable. Off she went amidst screams and lamentations. A resourceful bystander hopped into his sports car, raced ahead of the girl and neatly snipped off her pony tail as she slithered by. When the young lady regained her composure, she gave her rescuer what-for because he had sacrificed her pony tail!

When one of these sagacious mastodons comes to a bridge, he tests it first with his trunk. If it holds firm, he next plants his front feet on it. If it still stands, he sits on it. After that, he sends another elephant over first!"

125 Inmates Due To Study Via Television

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Some 125 inmates of the Lebanon Correctional Institution in southwestern Ohio are expected to take part as students in the midwest program for airborne television instruction this fall.

Maury Koblentz, state corrections commissioner, reported that Lebanon will be the first penal institution in the several-state region covered by the educational telecasts to take part in the program.

It will be a step of an over-all effort to boost education in Ohio's prisons, Koblentz said, adding that the Lebanon Institution alone on a limited basis. The courses are beamed from an airplane flying over Indiana.

Subjects to be taken by the prison inmates will be for grades 1-8 and six courses a day, 9 a.m. — noon and 1-4 p.m. will be projected on screens at the institution. Inmate participation will be partially voluntary and partially compulsory, the latter for those with little education.

Koblentz said his records show that of the last 2,000 men entering Ohio Penitentiary, about 85 per cent had not finished high school. Average educational level of the new convicts is the sixth grade, he said.

Sen. Dodd Speaks Out

Perhaps for the first time since 1933, a genuine foreign policy debate has been continuous in the United States Senate. There was a possibility, years ago, of such a debate when Senator Arthur Vandenberg, of Michigan, led the Republicans, but Vandenberg, an isolationist, with astounding suddenness, joined the forces of the internationalists.

Curiously, in the present debate, it is a Democrat whose voice is most constantly raised against a foreign policy which has often produced marked failure. Senator Thomas J. Dodd of Connecticut, a Democrat, has, in his first term in the Senate, made an astonishingly significant reputation for scholarship and profound penetration into foreign policy. Usually a first term Senator does not have too much to say and more often he does not say anything controversial because he is not sure of himself. Surprisingly Senator Dodd has stepped forward as a positive personality, strong in his convictions, certain of his purposes.

Recently, Lyle Munson, who runs "The Bookmailers, Inc.," edited and published a number of Senator Dodd's speeches in a book which covers a wide range of subjects.

Describing our national purpose, Senator Dodd said:

"To the peoples of Europe . . . patriotism has its root in the past and represents a love of all the similarities and things shared in common with their countrymen. But we in America, in the early years of our nation, had no past. We had more differences than similarities. Our people had no common history except that of escape

Young Snorts At Waste in Special Study

WASHINGTON (AP) — U. S. Sen. Stephen M. Young, D-Ohio, asserts that the Welfare Department is wasting taxpayers' money on several make-work projects.

The outspoken junior Ohio senator said he referred to studies such as "the social role of the wild ungulate" and the "stereotactic atlas of the beagle brain."

Webster's Dictionary defines "ungulate" as a hooved quadruped—a four-footed animal with hooves.

The dictionary says "stereotactic" derives from "stereotaxis," which is defined as "thigmotaxis." But it goes on to say the definition for "thigmotaxis" is "stereotaxis." Nothing is said about the "atlas" of a beagle brain, but a human atlas is described as the first vertebra of the neck which "revolves upon the odontoid process of the axis on a pivot and articulates with the occipital condyles of the skull."

If that isn't enough to unsettle a senator, Young asserts that the spending for such studies a leas raises doubts.

The study on how ungulates get along with one another is costing some $8,205 and the atlas work even more—$9,775—in government grants.

"The possession of millions of dollars in taxpayers' money should not be permitted to encourage wasteful make-work projects by any government agency," Young said.

Other grants to which he took exception included: "Indian caste cohesiveness and personality development, $7,820; studies of silent thinking, $26,565; behavioral and psychological concomitants of dreaming, $20,700; the ontogeny of English phrase structure, $2,100, and blood group genetics of Southampton Island Eskimos, $11,500."

Young credited Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., with turning up the list of research projects.

and Hitler have made it clear that any movement which sets out to persecute Judaism inevitably winds up by rejecting and persecuting Christianity.

"As free men who worship God, we cannot ignore the existence of anti-Semitism, even on a small scale, in this country or in other countries. We cannot ignore the desecration of a single synagogue, any more than we can ignore the taking of a single life."

This has so often been proved true. In the universal secularism which is attacking the minds of men in this particular era, an attack on any religious concept only too often is an attack upon all religions of God. Anti-Semitism is, for instance, being most fiercely propagated at the present time in Soviet Russia and in most of the countries of the Soviet Universal State. Soviet Russia is an utterly secular country pursuing the mandate that religion is an opiate for the people. Destroying the Jews, as a religion, can only be a forerunner of closing down all Christian churches as unnecessary and purposeless.

In grasping this essential characteristic of the Communist struggle for supremacy Senator Dodd has made a valuable contribution to the discussion of this subject.

No Shelter Funds

Congress is not buying the idea that what the United States needs to protect its citizens during the interminable cold war is a massive fallout shelter program. In one of Congress' most inclusive rejections of an administration request, the House Appropriations Committee approved only $75 million of the $695 million requested.

Virtually all of the approved funds is for current projects involving investigation of possible natural shelters and research activities. None will be available for a crash program of shelter construction, for which the President had requested $460 million.

The widely publicized construction program (perhaps too widely ballyhooed for its own good) brought forth much criticism from members of Congress and the public, on many grounds. Its fantastic cost (the $460 million was only the first step of a five-year program, and the states would have to add another 40 per cent to Washington's contribution) was unveiled at a poor psychological moment. The nation's finances are already badly out of kilter no revenue-raising provision has been made for civil defense.

Many other critics find little solace in the prospect of draining badly needed funds from the nation's nuclear arsenal to build what they contend is an unnecessary safeguard as long as our mighty deterrent force is thrust in the face of would-be aggressors.

Every individual and each community is free to make its own decisions concerning shelters. The federal government will continue to utilize billions to produce a pair of biceps not even the most deranged dictator would consider molesting.

Champagne and Budgets

French champagne producers last year turned out a postwar record of 54 million bottles. But the United States bought about the same number as in previous years — 2. million.

This led the French Interprofessional Champagne Committee to comment: "It is certain that a country of 180 million, whose riches seem without limit, could do much better by champagne. Patience and perseverance would seem to be indicated."

Alas, even Americans are not rich without limit. Most of us still have to worry about budgets, and champagne costs far more here than in Paris.

What the committee cannot understand, though, is why Americans consume 100 million bottles of Scotch whisky annually. But there's no mystery about it. They're following the good old slogan of yesteryear: A bigger bang for a buck.

Junior Capitalists Doing OK

By JOY STILLEY

(For Hal Boyle)

NEW YORK (AP)—My young daughter has made a premature entrance into the world of commerce. She is doing pretty well for a 12-year-old, too.

In a financial situation so disastrous that she didn't know where her next ice cream cone was coming from, Gay decided his summer it was essential to chase the wolf away from the door by her own efforts.

Enlisting the aid of two equally indigent friends, she started a nursery camp for youngsters in the neighborhood.

Entrance requirements for this establishment were made lenient—any candidate old enough to clutch 35 cents in his little fist was eligible.

The trio of would-be junior capitalists signed up a respectable number of wee ones, with grateful mothers waiting in line to farm their toddlers out for a couple of hours.

From the start the camp has been successful. They earn good money for their efforts. I give mine free.

No more sleeping late for me these days. I have to get up to get the counselor in our house held up. The girls graciously agreed to mix the midmorning drink themselves after I balked at that job. But somehow I still fall heir to the task of cleaning up the trail of sugar and sticky spoons they always leave behind.

I'm not a licensed banker, but I am well-trained for the job, having been called on to make change for everything from a nickel to a $10 bill.

Since the camp is held closer to our dwelling than those of the other counselors it becomes the obvious place to supply the comforts of home to the kiddies away from home.

And somehow it's the most convenient storage spot for all the equipment—blankets dripping with grass and cockleburrs, mounds of broken crayons, torn books and lopsided piles of construction paper. I also furnish refrigerator space until refreshment time.

Maybe I won't have to put a stop to it after all, though. The thing may collapse of its own complications.

It seems that at the last camp period Jayne couldn't get there until 50 minutes late. Gay had to depart 15 minutes early for a doctor's appointment. Joan, however, was present for the whole two-hour session.

When last seen the three working girls were sitting on the floor with piles of coins in front of them, pencils and paper beside them. They were dividing the 120 minutes into segments of 10 minutes each, multiplying them by the number of periods each girl worked and coming up with three different answers.

I'd offer to help but I do like to sleep late in the mornings.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A DEVOTEE of the quaint cable cars that still climb the steep hills of San Francisco tells of the day a young girl with a pony tail leaned over the opening between the tracks to see the cable actually in operation.

Her pony tail slipped into the slot and was whipped around the cable. Off she went amidst screams and lamentations. A resourceful bystander hopped into his sports car, raced ahead of the girl and neatly snipped off her pony tail as she slithered by. When the young lady regained her composure, she gave her rescuer what-for because he had sacrificed her pony tail!

"A Wall Street security analyst," the late Herbert Bayard Swope liked to point out, "is as cautious as an Indian elephant. When one of these sagacious mastodons comes to a bridge, he tests it first with his trunk. If it holds firm, he next plants his front foot on it. If it still stands, he sits on it. After that, he sends another elephant over first!"

Surprisingly Senator Dodd has stepped forward as a positive personality, strong in his convictions, certain of his purposes.

Recently, Lyle Munson, who runs "The Bookmiller, Inc.," edited and published a number of Senator Dodd's speeches in a book which covers a wide range of subjects.

Describing our national purpose, Senator Dodd said:

"To the peoples of Europe . . . patriotism has its root in the past and represents a love of all the similarities and things shared in common with their countrymen. But we in America, in the early years of our nation, had no past. We had more differences than similarities. Our people had no common history except that of escape from the histories of a score of other nations.

"We had no common religion except a heritage of seeking religious freedom. We had no common tongue, no common national identity, no national music or art, no folk tales, no national literature except for the political writings of our founding fathers.

"All that we had in common with which to mold a united nation, was a new set of ideas, attitudes, of institutions; untried, unproved, yet having the universality of expressing the ancient hopes and yearnings of mankind for a better and fuller life. And we shared together a new virgin continent upon which we could try out our experiment."

The question then is: what is this experiment to produce? Surely, if the American experiment is to mean nothing more than a high standard of living—more automobiles, more ice-boxes, more steaks—the terrific cost in human effort was not worthwhile. Senator Dodd answers:

"That the state exists to serve man and that man's liberty, his property, his family and his individual rights are above and beyond the reach of the state;

"That every man should have a fair chance to succeed or to fail on his own, a square deal, a clear field;

"That every man should be able to speak his piece without fear or reprisal;

"That every man should have an equal voice in choosing those who govern him; . . ."

Writing of our enemy, Senator Dodd wrote:

"Perhaps the most popular phrase of those who minimize the evils of Communism is that we cannot look at the world scene in terms of 'black and white,' which of course carries the implication that both the Free World and the Communist World are at fault for the present danger and that each side has its good points and its bad points. I willingly concede our bad points, but I have never been able to discover the good points of communism."

Speaking of anti-Semitism, Senator Dodd said:

"By their statements both Marx and Hitler have made it clear that any movement which sets out to persecute Judaism inevitably winds up by rejecting and persecuting Christianity.

"As free men who worship God, we cannot ignore the existence of anti-Semitism, even on a small scale, in this country or in other countries. We cannot ignore the desecration of a single synagogue, any more than we can ignore the taking of a single life."

The Business World

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK (AP)—Faster pumping of government funds into the economy is being tried again in lieu of a quickie tax cut.

The sum so far committed—$2 billion to speed highway building is smaller than the $5-$10 billion cut in income taxes previously considered. But the object is the same—to get a slowing down economy moving again at a brisker pace.

The administration may think up other pump-priming moves toward the same end, while it waits for the tax cut and tax reforms.

Speeding up federal spending also was used in 1960 to nudge a lagging economy. Veterans insurance dividends, for example, were made earlier than usual, and tax refunds were speeded.

The $2 billion this time is being made available to such states as have highway projects far enough along to make immediate use of it. Only about a dozen are reported in that group. The object is to get construction contracts let in coming weeks and thus open up more jobs.

States believed able to use the money now include Arizona, Arkansas, Colorado, Illinois, Maine, Minnesota, North and South Carolina, Tennessee, South Dakota and Washington.

If all the $2 billion is spent within the next few months it also will trickle through the economy in the form of orders for materials, road equipment, and spending by workers who get whatever new jobs are created.

The accent is on doing a quick job. The $2 billion doesn't add to the total amount to be spent by the federal government as its part of the huge highway program. It is simply being made available now rather than in the future.

The money comes out of a special fund set up to finance the 41,000-mile interstate highway project.

The states put up part of the money but the federal government will put up most.

The states had been told they

Dear Abby: Try Positive Thinking!

by Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Am I foolish for being "jealous" of my husband's first wife? She is no longer living and I never knew her but, Abby, it's not easy to live in her house, cook on her stove, and sleep in her bed. I haven't said anything to my husband about how I feel because I know he can't afford to replace everything all at once, but it's getting me down. Any advice to boost my spirits?

WIFE NUMBER TWO
DEAR WIFE: A little patience will go a long way. And your point of view needs changing. It's your house now—and your stove, your bed, and more important, your man. So if you love him, don't give him a problem he can't solve right now.

the car around and go the other way. She won't leave the house on Friday the 13th. You couldn't pay her to sit 13 at a table. How can I convince her that superstitions are a lot of baloney? Or am I the NUTTY ONE?

KNOCKING ON WOOD
DEAR KNOCKING: Superstition arises from ignorance. Hotfoot it over to the library and get a book on the origin of superstitions. (But don't step on a crack or you'll break your mother's back.)

Unload your problem on Abby. For a personal reply send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY, care of this paper.

Ezekiel Proclaims God's Love

THE DIVINE PROMISE OF THE COMING OF A SHEPHERD WHO WOULD BRING AN ABUNDANT AND UNCHANGING BLESSEDNESS

Scripture—Ezekiel 33:1-34

By N. SPEER JONES

THE SCENE of this week's lesson is still Babylon, at the Chebar canal near the capital. Ezekiel continues to preach to the exiles there, with one very important difference—Jerusalem has fallen to the conquerors in whose land he lives.

This fact means two things. First, it means that many, many more exiles join the group of captives already there. The area around Babylon becomes a center of the Judaistic remnant.

Secondly, the occurrence of this great disaster means that Ezekiel may stop preaching the dire things to come. His warnings have done no good, but now, at least, he may change his message to one of consolation and hope.

Secondly, no matter how sinful a man has been, if he does repent and follow God's word, there is "life." Lastly, he points out that this disaster has not been due to God's unfairness to His people, as they allege, but to themselves individually (Ezekiel 33:17-20).

Along with Ezekiel's change from warning to consolation comes a change in metaphor from watchman to shepherd (see chapter 34). Just as the good watchman and bad watchman were described, here we see Israel's false shepherds or leaders (the literal translation of "to shepherd" is "to rule") compared with the good ones, especially the coming Messiah Himself.

GOLDEN TEXT

"You are my sheep, the sheep of my pasture, and I am your God, says the Lord God."—Ezekiel 34:31.

In fact, he terms himself a watchman (Ezekiel 33:1-9). In an agricultural community, this was a very meaningful term; a tower was often erected over pasture lands, where a watchman might be on guard against attacking thieves or animals, and blow a trumpet to signal danger. Ezekiel says that if he had not warned the people of their impending doom, he would have been a very poor watchman.

Since the disaster, Ezekiel's message from God to the people is threefold. First, he points out that there is no hope without repentance. The exiles were so discouraged that they appeared more indifferent to their sins than ever, yet the first step toward recovery then, as now, was repentance.

The false shepherds had driven out the weaker people and sacrificed the stronger ones to their own interests. Their cruel and unrighteous rule had helped bring their downfall. God promises that in the future He Himself will look after His flock, through Christ. One descended from His servant David. Verse 23 bears the first reference to this Single Shepherd.

The fat and the strong (verse 16) do not mean the best, but those whose sole essence is wealth or might.

The "hill" referred to in verse 26 is probably Zion or Jerusalem. God's promises for the future for His people are glowing to the point of having "showers of blessing," a phrase famous for its feeling of glory.

Maronite Patriarch Slated For Visit to United States

BEIRUT (AP) — For the first time a patriarch of the Maronite Roman Catholic Church will visit the United States this month.

Patriarch Paul Meouchi, 68, will be received by President Kennedy in Washington and then tour the United States visiting his scattered flock—one of the most widely dispersed church groups existing today.

Comprised mainly of far-roaming Lebanese, traders through history, the Maronites are at once the pride and despair of their patriarch. "It's a joy to go anywhere in the world and be among your own people," he says, "but sometimes at home we wish them closer to us."

Although the Maronite Rite is identical in doctrine and the essentials of worship with the Roman Catholic Church, it has preserved a separate and definitely Lebanese identity. Maronites from Macao to Los Angeles look to the white-bearded patriarch in Lebanon as their leader, while recognizing the Pope as the ultimate church authority.

There are approximately 782,500 Maronites, about 125,000 of them living in the United States.

Although no patriarch in office has ever visited the United States before, Patriarch Meouchi was there as a priest from 1920 to 1934 and at the time became an American citizen. He reluctantly gave up his citizenship when ordered back to Lebanon. He said he felt his role required resuming Lebanese citizenship.

He would have preferred to maintain citizenship in both countries and feels "the United States should permit dual citizenship as many countries do."

"The United States was so free, so fresh, it was a pleasure just talking to people," he recalls. "I had been quite prepared to finish my days there when I was ordered back."

At that time he was in Los Angeles, where he opened the first Maronite

Ezekiel Proclaims God's Love

THE DIVINE PROMISE OF THE COMING OF A SHEPHERD WHO WOULD BRING AN ABUNDANT AND UNCHANGING BLESSEDNESS

Scripture—Ezekiel 33:1-8; 34.

By N. SPEER JONES
THE SCENE of this week's lesson is still Babylon, at the Chebar canal near the capital.
Ezekiel continues to preach to the exiles there, with one very important difference—Jernalem has fallen to the conquerors in whose land he lives.

This fact means two things.
First, it means that many, many more exiles join the group of captives already there. The area around Babylon becomes a center of the Judaistic remnant.
Secondly, the occurrence of this great disaster means that Ezekiel may stop preaching the dire things to come. His warnings have done no good, but now, at least, he may change his message to one of consolation and hope.

Secondly, no matter how sinful a man has been, if he does repent and follow God's word, there is "life."

Lastly, he points out that this disaster has not been due to God's unfairness to His people, as they allege, but to themselves individually (Ezekiel 33: 17-20).

Along with Ezekiel's change from warning to consolation comes a change in metaphor from watchman to shepherd (see chapter 34). Just as the good watchman and bad watchmen were described, here we see Israel's false shepherds or leaders (the literal translation of "to shepherd" is "to rule") compared with the good ones, especially the coming Messiah Himself.

GOLDEN TEXT

"You are my sheep, the sheep of my pasture, and I am your God, says the Lord God."—Ezekiel 34:31.

In fact, he terms himself a watchman (Ezekiel 33:1-9). In an agricultural community, this was a very meaningful term;
a tower was often erected over pasture lands, where a watchman might be on guard against attacking thieves or animals, and blow a trumpet to signal danger. Ezekiel says that if he had not warned the people of their impending doom, he would have been a very poor watchman.

Since the disaster, Ezekiel's message from God to the people is threefold. First, he points out that there is no hope without repentance. The exiles were so discouraged that they appeared more indifferent to their sins than ever, yet the first step toward recovery then, as now, was repentance.

National Council of Churches of Christ

The false shepherds had driven out the weaker people and sacrificed the stronger ones to their own interests. Their cruel and unrighteous rule had helped bring their downfall. God promises that in the future He Himself will look after His flock, through Christ, One descended from His servant David. Verse 23 bears the first reference to this Single Shepherd.

The fat and the strong (verse 16) do not mean the best, but those whose sole essence is wealth or might.

The "hill" referred to in verse
26 is probably Zion or Jerusalem. God's promises for the future for His people are glowing to the point of having
"showers of blessing," a phrase famous for its feeling of glory.

Maronite Patriarch Slated For Visit to United States

BEIRUT (AP) — For the first time a patriarch of the Maronite Roman Catholic Church will visit the United States this month.

Patriarch Paul Meouchi, 68, will be received by President Kennedy in Washington and then tour the United States visiting his scattered flock—one of the most widely dispersed church groups existing today.

Comprised mainly of far-roaming Lebanese, traders through history, the Maronites are at once the pride and despair of their pa-triarh. "It's a joy to go anywhere in the world and be among your own people," he says, "but sometimes at home we wish them closer to us."

Although the Maronite Rite is identical in doctrine and the essentials of worship with the Roman Catholic Church, it has preserved a separate and definitely Lebanese identity. Maronites from Macao to Los Angeles look to the white-bearded patriarch in Lebanon as their leader, while recognizing the Pope as the ultimate church authority.

There are approximately 782,500
Maronites, about 125,000 of them living in the United States.

Although no patriarch in office has ever visited the United States before, Patriarch Meouchi was there as a priest from 1920 to 1934 and at the time became an American citizen. He reluctantly gave up his citizenship when ordered back to Lebanon. He said he felt his role required resuming Lebanese citizenship.

He would have preferred to maintain citizenship in both countries and feels "the United States should permit dual citizenship as many countries do."

"The United States was so free, so fresh, it was a pleasure just talking to people," he recalls. "I had been quite prepared to finish my days there when I was ordered back."

At that time he was in Los Angeles, where he opened the first Maronite church. Shortly after his return to Lebanon he was made bishop of Tyre. He became patriarch in 1955.

Today's birthdays:
Actress Maureen O'Hara is 41
years old. Former U.S. Diplomat
John Hay Whitney is 58.

There is a feeling of eternity in youth, which makes amends for everything. To be young is to be as one of the immortal gods—
William Hazlitt.

Kennedy Off On Tour of Water Plants

The formal objective of Kennedy's weekend journeying back and forth across the continent was visits to the $345 million Oahe-dam and power plant on the Mis-souri River just north of Pierre, pan water project in Colorado, and a dynamite powered ground-breaking for the $511 million San Luis dam and canal system in California's San Joaquin Valley.

The President does his San Luis speaking and dynamite firing chores Saturday, at the dam site west of Los Banos.

He flies to Castle Air Force Base at Merced this afternoon, whirled by helicopter to beautiful Yosemite Valley to spend the night, and takes the chopper again in the morning to Los Banos.

The helicopter will backtrack to Fresno, where Kennedy will make a few remarks at the airport before boarding his jetliner and winging down to Los Angeles.

Aides said Kennedy had no official activity slated for Los Angeles—only some time with his sister, Patricia, and her husband, actor Peter Lawford, at their Santa Monica home.

Los Angeles is the home port of Nixon. And there probably isn't anyone Kennedy would rather see take another political licking than the man he barely kept out of the White House in 1960. Consequently, California has been tabbed for some outright political activity on Kennedy's part later in the campaign.

On this trip, though, Gov. Brown has a prominent role among the Kennedy newcomers and in the San Luis groundbreaking ceremonies, and this isn't calculated to do him harm in what is regarded widely as the top political bout of 1962. A Brown victory would just about mean the end of Nixon as a major political figure—and as a potential challenger of Kennedy again in 1964.

South Dakota's Oahe Dam, the first stop today, is the world's biggest packed earth dam. One of six in the $5.8 billion Missouri River Basin development project, its reservoir will stretch 250 miles up The Missouri. Flood control, power production, irrigation and navigation are the major purposes of the project.

Briley Lashes Lausche Stand

FINDLAY, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's Republican candidate for U.S. senator says his Democratic opponent approved the communications satellite bill in committee, yet supported amendments to the bill on the Senate floor.

John Marshall Briley of Toledo made the statement at a Hancock County GOP picnic Thursday.

Briley said Sen. Frank J. Lausche is a member of the Senate Commerce and Foreign Relations committees which recommended the bill in the form in which it was presented to the Senate.

However, Briley said, "we find my opponent aligning himself with Democratic liberals in offering additional amendments to the bill on the Senate floor. One of these amendments would have empowered the State Department to conduct the kind of negotiations for business agreements which in all recorded history have been handled for themselves by our international communications carriers. . . ."

PTA Chief Freed In 'Gambling' Case

STOTTVILLE, N.Y. (AP)—The state's case against Barbara Barringer, a mother of four and a Parent-Teacher Association president, has been thrown out of court. She isn't a "common gambler."

Justice of the Peace Everett MacCormack dismissed the common-gambler charge.

Mrs. Barringer, 29, head of the PTA in this Columbia County community, had been arrested by state police Saturday night as she operated a wheel of fortune at a carnival. The fair was sponsored by the Stottville Recreation Committee to raise funds for a community swimming pool.

DiSalle Hails Private Work With Children

WOOSTER, Ohio (AP) — The work of private institutions dealing with problem and delinquent children "make your heart heavy when you compare it to the inadequate program the state government is struggling with," says Gov. Michael V. DiSalle.

Touring Medina and Wayne counties Thursday in his campaign for re-election, DiSalle spoke of visiting three privately-run institutions which, he said, are doing an exceptional job dealing with problem children, delinquents or children from broken homes.

He cited the work at Starr Commonwealth and Marsh Foundations at Van Wert and the Boys Village near Smithville.

At Starr Commonwealth and Marsh Foundations, which do not handle delinquents, there is one "mother" and one "father" for each cottage of 10 or 11 boys, the governor said. At Smithville, where delinquents also are treated, they have a ratio of one attendant to each child. DiSalle said the results are amazing.

He compared the ratio with that in effect at the Boys' Industrial School near Lancaster where "they usually have one set of cottage parents for every 50 or 60 boys."

The private institutions "boast records of 90 per cent rehabilitation," DiSalle continued. Commenting on boys at BIS, he said, "Is it any wonder most of these graduate to the Mansfield Reformatory or Ohio Penitentiary?"

New Criticism Levied against Cincinnati Plan

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — New criticism of Cincinnati's plan to build a waterworks well plant has cropped up from residents of Ross, near the proposed site.

Ross Postmaster Phil Tozzer said Thursday residents of the community in rural Butler County think the Cincinnati plant would drastically lower the water table. He said recent well-digging had to go down to 50 feet to reach water.

Cincinnati bought a 172-acre section earlier this week for the planned plant.

Hamilton officials have rapped the proposed plant, which would be near a new Hamilton water works well, saying it menaced the water supply of southeastern Butler County.

A Cincinnati city attorney filed a protest in Common Pleas Court Thursday against proposed formation of a Butler County conservancy district.

The court action contended the district was proposed only to prevent Cincinnati from developing the Ross water works site.

Cincinnati officials have asserted there is plenty of underground water in the Ross area to justify its plant.

After all those damp years of emoting in scuba gear in "Sea Hunt," Bridges soon will crawl ashore at CBS with an anthology series in which he will play both host and starring role each week.

The gimmick is that Bridges plays a writer who each week daydreams himself into a new experience. A dusty pair of cavalry boots sends him back to a Civil War story, or a newspaper headline to a contemporary tale.

Bridges is a slowspoken, conscientious fellow who likes to think things over carefully. Producer Aaron Spelling, close friend and partner in the enterprise, is an enthusiastic, fastspeaking man, bubbling with ideas. He also is one of the top men at Dick Powell's bustling Four Star productions.

"There just aren't any new ideas around in this business of ours," Spelling confessed frankly. "Everything is in the way you treat it."

The character as originally dreamed up by Spelling was to be called "Adam Fable," after the first man and after Spelling's belief that most men tend to live within their own fables.

"But then we changed it to Adam Shepherd," he said, "because too many people thought the title meant we would do a lot of Walter Mitty stories—the little man with heroic dreams. Shepherd sounded like a good name—he astronaut had just made his flight—so we chose that."

The formal objective of Kennedy's weekend journeying back and forth across the continent was visits to the $345 million Oahe dam and power plant on the Missouri River just north of Pierre, and a dynamite powered ground-breaking for the $511 million San Luis dam and canal system in California's San Joaquin Valley.

The President does his San Luis speaking and dynamite firing chores Saturday, at the dam site west of Los Banos.

He flies to Castle Air Force Base at Merced this afternoon, whirled by helicopter to beautiful Yosemite Valley to spend the night, and takes the chopper again in the morning to Los Banos.

The helicopter will backtrack to Fresno, where Kennedy will make a few remarks at the airport before boarding his jetliner and winging down to Los Angeles.

Aides said Kennedy had no official activity slated for Los Angeles—only some time with his sister, Patricia, and her husband, actor Peter Lawford, at their Santa Monica home.

Los Angeles is the home port of Nixon. And there probably isn't anyone Kennedy would rather see take another political licking than the man he barely kept out of the White House in 1960. Consequently, California has been tabbed for some outright political activity on Kennedy's part later in the campaign.

On this trip, though, Gov. Brown has a prominent role among the Kennedy welcomers and in the San Luis groundbreaking ceremonies, and this isn't calculated to do him harm in what is regarded widely as the top political bout of 1962. A Brown victory would just about mean the end of Nixon as a major political figure—and as a potential challenger of Kennedy again in 1964.

South Dakota's Oahe Dam, the first stop today, is the world's biggest packed earth dam. One of six in the $5.8 billion Missouri River Basin development project, its reservoir will stretch 250 miles up the Missouri. Flood control, power production, irrigation and navigation are the major purposes of the project.

Highlight of the evening came when Ankrom presented each player with a miniature baseball on which was inscribed, Ankrom Mosquito League Champs, 1962. Norman Peters was presented with a gift from the youngsters. Assistant managers Don Valentine, Art Cotton and David Gillis were given gifts by Peters.

6 Golfers Are Tied
In St. Paul Tourney

ST. PAUL (AP)—The spotlight was on six golfers today as the $30,000 St. Paul Open Golf Tournament moved into the second round of 18 holes.

They are Joe Campbell, Pendleton, Ind., Rex Baxter Jr., Amarillo, Tex., Frank Wharton, Marquette, N.Y., Dave Ragan, Sun City, Fla., Doug Sanders, Ojai, Calif., and Bob Shave, Wiloughby, Ohio. All shot 6-under-par 66s in Thursday's first round over the par 72, 6,557-yard Keller course.

Maryland has won every Atlantic Coast Conference team wrestling title for the past nine years.

Clutch hitting by Mike Porter and Dick Barr spelled the difference. Chet Gloyd's wildness plus some erratic fielding in the 4th and 5th innings was all the Giants' needed.

Mike Porter paced the hitting attack for the Giants with a triple and single in three trips. Bill Hall had a perfect evening for the Redlegs — going 3 for 3, which included a double and triple.

Rex Gregg chipped in with a pair of run batted in singles. Gloyd was charged with the loss his first against 5 wins, while Clay Taylor picked up the win, his third against no defeats.

THE YANKEES jumped into a first inning 4 to 0 lead and went on to easily hand the Indians a 7 to 1 loss behind the steady 3-hit pitching of Bob Cook.

Lee Curry and Greg Groves paced the Yankee hitters with two hits in four trips to the plate. Curry had a pair of doubles, while Groves blasted a two-run double. Ron Lambert hit a towering first inning home run. The blast was Lambert's fifth circuit smash of the year. Tom Pickering took the loss while Cook picked up with win his 4th against a lone setback.

The Dodgers rolled into an early lead and hung on desperately to outlast the Cardinals in a thrilling 9-8 tussle.

Jim Deal's relief pitching was the evening highlight. Coming in with the bases loaded the tying and winning runs on—Deal promptly struck out the side, John Tucker paced the Dodgers with 3 hits, including a double and triple. Bob Welsh also had a pair of doubles for the Dodgers. Jack Nungster led the Cards' bats with a 3 for 3 performance, including a long bases loaded triple in the 6th. Dixon was charged with the loss, while Welsh picked up the win.

The Redlegs, winners of the first round in the TV Little League, will meet the second round winner in a best of three series to determine the League Champs.

In the first round the undefeated Reds scored 62 runs while holding their opposition to 22. The Yanks and Cards tied for second with identical 3-2 records.

Dodger-Reds Showdown To Start Tonight

CINCINNATI (AP) — A showdown series between Cincinnati and Los Angeles for the National League lead begins tonight, and even the normally icy Fred Hutchinson is showing the strain.

"This series give us our big chance," said Hutch with some emotion Thursday night after the Reds had walloped Milwaukee 7-1.

The Dodgers, hit hard by a slump that cost them five straight losses, finally beat Pittsburgh 7-3 Thursday night.

With only 5½ games separating the Dodgers and the third-place Reds, the four games planned here loom large to both teams.

The Reds hold a major threat in outfielder Frank Robinson, currently the hottest hitter in baseball with the league lead in batting and slugging. He hit two homers for the second night in a row Thursday night.

Hutchinson named Jim O'Toole to pitch tonight, opposing Dodger rookie Pete Richert.

The pitching of young Jim Maloney was overshadowed Thursday night by Robinson's hitting. He now has 31 homers and 11 in the Reds' last 12 games.

Walter Johnson lost the first game of his major league career to the Detroit Tigers, Aug. 2, 1907. Twenty years later, almost to the day, Aug. 22, 1927, the great Washington pitcher bowed out of the majors with a loss to the Tigers.

Hank Aguirre Is Surprise For Detroit

DETROIT (AP)—It was a bitter cold winter day and Hank Aguirre, about to head for spring training, made a proclamation—"I want to be a starting pitcher this spring."

The Detroit Tiger southpaw is a jokemaker and his listeners merely laughed. It sounded like another of his funny remarks.

After all, here is a veteran pitcher past his 30th birthday with little in his record to recommend him as a starter for a pennant-hopeful club. He was a bullpen performer most of his career and Manager Bob Scheffing hesitated to use him even in relief last year. In seven previous seasons he had a grand total of 18 victories and in his best year he was a five-game winner.

Scheffing gave Aguirre a couple of exhibition game trials and watched him get bombed. So Scheffing stopped using him.

Aguirre came north with the Tigers in danger of losing his job. "I started the year just trying to make the ball club," Aguirre recalled Wednesday after recording his 10th victory, a four-hit 3-1 masterpiece over the Baltimore Orioles.

AFL Preview Shows Loop Grows Calmer

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Is the American Football League all of a sudden getting defensive-minded?

If the scores of the early exhibition games are a criterion, there has been a definite swing away from the wild and woolly, free-throwing, pass-happy games of the past two years.

Now, things have taken a reverse swing with all of the clubs except champion Houston, which has the loop's most potent offense—one that has taken it through 13 straight games since last season without a loss. Houston has scored 33 points in its two exhibition victories this year.

Latest testament to emphasis on defense was Boston's narrow 12-7 victory over the Buffalo Bills before 22,112 fans in Buffalo Thursday. It took a pair of last period field goals by Gin Cappelletti of the Patriots to nail down the victory after Boston's defense had held the Bills scoreless through three periods.

Only the New York Titans have been able to average three touchdowns a game, scoring 37 points in their two losses. Among the other teams which have played twice, Boston has averaged 16. Buffalo 14, Oakland 12 and Dallas 6½. Denver and San Diego each scored 17 in their only outing.

Hank Aguirre Is Surprise For Detroit

DETROIT (AP)—It was a bitter cold winter day and Hank Aguirre, about to head for spring training, made a proclamation—"I want to be a starting pitcher this spring."

The Detroit Tiger southpaw is a jokemaker and his listeners merely laughed. It sounded like another of his funny remarks.

After all, here is a veteran pitcher past his 30th birthday with little in his record to recommend him as a starter for a pennant-hopeful club. He was a bullpen performer most of his career and Manager Bob Scheffing hesitated to use him even in relief last year. In seven previous seasons he had a grand total of 18 victories and in his best year he was a five-game winner.

Scheffing gave Aguirre a couple of exhibition game trials and watched him get bombed. So Scheffing stopped using him.

Aguirre came north with the Tigers in danger of losing his job. "I started the year just trying to make the ball club," Aguirre recalled Wednesday after recording his 10th victory, a four-hit 3-1 masterpiece over the Baltimore Orioles.

AFL Preview Shows Loop Grows Calmer

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Is the American Football League all of a sudden getting defensive-minded?

If the scores of the early exhibition games are a criterion, there has been a definite swing away from the wild and woolly, free-throwing, pass-happy games of the past two years.

Now, things have taken a reverse swing with all of the clubs except champion Houston, which has the loop's most potent offense—one that has taken it through 13 straight games since last season without a loss. Houston has scored 33 points in its two exhibition victories this year.

Latest testament to emphasis on defense was Boston's narrow 12-7 victory over the Buffalo Bills before 22,112 fans in Buffalo Thursday. It took a pair of last period field goals by Gail Cappelletti of the Patriots to nail down the victory after Boston's defense had held the Bills scoreless through three periods.

Only the New York Titans have been able to average three touchdowns a game, scoring 37 points in their two losses. Among the other teams which have played twice, Boston has averaged 16, Buffalo 14, Oakland 12 and Dallas 6½. Denver and San Diego each scored 17 in their only outing.

County Superintendent Says Teacher Shortage Felt Here

The extreme teacher shortage in Ohio has posed a definite problem in Pickaway County Schools this year according to county superintendent George D. McDowell.

With the opening of schools just two weeks away there are still positions remaining unfilled on Pickaway County faculties.

McDowell said one of the more serious problems arising from the teacher shortage is the holding of unsigned contracts by prospective tutors. He said teachers apply for jobs in the county system, then hold the contract, waiting to see if a better position becomes available elsewhere.

If nothing better materializes they return the signed contract.

A SCHOOL board is limited on the action it may take relative to filling the position if a contract is being held by a prospect.

County schools have lost several teachers during this practice this summer, McDowell explained.

The County superintendent said the average person does not appreciate the shortage of teachers, nationwide as well as state wide. He pointed out that statistics compiled by the educational personnel division of the teacher placement office at Ohio State University showed that there was a need for 10,000 or more new teachers a year in Ohio, while the combined resources of all teacher education institutions in Ohio produce only about 5,000 each year.

This means that each year approximately one-half of Ohio's new teachers must be recruited from other states.

The teaching profession cannot compete with industry's pay scale. He noted that many high school graduates were capable of earning $6,000 to $8,000. A teacher who has spent several thousand dollars on higher education could expect to start at a pay scale considerably less than this, he added.

McDOWELL said several times this summer he has been forced to tell prospective teachers applying for jobs in the county system that the pay scale here would not warrant them leaving their present location for a teaching position here.

He went on to explain that it is far better to tell prospective teachers this rather than have them accept a position here, only to leave it in the middle of the school year for a more lucrative job in industry.

Pickaway County school budgets do not allow adequate competition with surrounding counties or with the Circleville system on teacher salary basis, McDowell said. This provides even more competition for obtaining teacher personnel, he added.

firm Air America, which flew for the right-wing Laotian government. Wolfkill was with them when their helicopter crashed behind Red lines May 15, 1961.

Baileger had been missing since April 22, 1961, when four American military advisers were captured under circumstances the State Department has refused to divulge.

Bailey was captured when his plane crashed March 23, 1961.

Frigillana, an Air America mechanic, disappeared in December 1960, during fighting between neutralist and right-wing forces for control of Vientiane.

Patnet Lao chief Prince Souphanouvong had promised their release following last month's Geneva accord, sanctioning a coalition government for Laos and pledging the country's neutrality.

A few minutes after the six men arrived, American military officials whisked Shore, McMorro, Baileger and Frigillana away. Bailey and Wolfkill stayed behind to talk to newsmen.

Bailey, 38, said he bailed out of a plane which was transporting seven other Americans before it crashed. Speaking with great difficulty, he said he did not know what went wrong with the plane and he was afraid all others aboard had died.

Bailey said when the Pathet Lao first captured him he was held in a house in eastern Sam Neua Province and given enough food. But for the past 11 months, he said, he was confined in a cell which had only a very small window.

Bailey said his captors never beat him, that the only mistreatment was continuous questioning. Wolfkill, 39, said the helicopter in which he was flying with Shore and McMorro, made a forced landing at Ban Veung San, about 40 miles north of Vientiane.

"We made a hasty landing," he said, "and nobody aboard was hurt, thanks to Shore"—the 30-year-old pilot. McMorro, 20, was the crew chief.

He said they left the helicopter in the jungle and without warning were surrounded by Pathet Lao troops.

The three of them were held for 11 months in a room which had no light in a place near Xieng Khouang, the Pathet Lao headquarters in the Plain de Jarres.

Wolfkill said they spent terrifying hours under the watchful eyes of young Meo tribesmen guards who, he added, "were full of hatred and roaming around with their rifles loaded and firing at random."

Wolfkill said that for days they were given only rice and salt to eat.

"Our condition improved when we were moved last April 6 to a Viet Minh camp," also in the Xieng Khouang area, he continued.

"Viet Minh soldiers more or less did abide to international conventions for war prisoners," Wolfkill said.

Ten other Americans are known to have disappeared in Laos between December 1960 and March 1961. Six were believed killed in a plane crash, but there has been no information on the other four.

Mobile X-Ray Cruiser Is Due In City, County Aug. 20-30

Schedule for the county-wide chest X-ray survey to find unknown cases of tuberculosis was released today by the Pickaway County Tuberculosis and Health Assn.

The Ohio Department of Health mobile chest X-ray cruiser, which will do the actual X-raying, is to visit seven sites in the county, the schedule indicates.

Dates of the survey are Aug. 20 to Aug. 30, inclusive.

All persons in the county 18 and older are eligible for an X-ray during the survey. But the Tuberculosis Assn. particularly urges persons over 45 to get an X-ray, since TB is most prevalent in that age group. It is also possible for a person to have the disease and unknowingly pass it on.

TUBERCULOSIS Assn. Spokesman pointed out that chest X-rays are free, quick and easy. No disrobing is necessary.

Each person tested will receive a confidential report of his X-ray. Signs of other chest abnormalities will also be reported.

Sponsors of the forthcoming survey are the Pickaway County Tuberculosis and Health Assn., City of Circleville Health Department, Pickaway County Health Department and the Ohio Department of Health.

This X-ray survey will be the only one held this year. Since
